

ABSTRACT

5 A lancing device where electrical stimulation is applied to a skin sampling site prior to making an incision to achieve at least one of pain masking and bodily fluid engorgement at the site. The electrical stimulation is supplied by a low current high voltage AC signal generator in sufficient quantities to produce vasodilation and/or pain masking.